ROAD TO Heaven

ABOUT Project

Some places don't really change your routine. You move in, unpack and life just keeps going the way it always has. And then there are places like Saima Mangrove Residency.

Right along Korangi Creek, it doesn't give you that usual Karachi feeling at first glance. You notice the water first ie; wide, open, calm. It feels like everything is smooth and you forget all the worldly stress. The air feels a bit lighter too. Not a dramatic change, just enough that you realise you are not in the middle of the usual city noise.

SAIMA MANGROVE RESIDENCY

KORANGI Creek KARACHI, PAKISTAN

Korangi Creek has a different pace to it. Hard to explain properly unless you have actually stood there. Everything feels a little more spaced out i.e; the skyline, the movement, even the sound. The mangroves line the water in a way that softens the whole view. It's still Karachi, just a side of it most people don't really think about day to day. For a long time, this part of the city stayed silent in the background. Now people are slowly starting to look at it differently.

PIN Location

Located near the Korangi Industrial Park, this project stands close to Ittehad DHA road. What makes the location interesting is how it sits between two very different experiences. You are still fully connected with business districts, commercial hubs, main roads, everything is within easy reach. Life feels simplified here. But when you come back, it does not feel like you have just stepped back into traffic and noise. There's a kind of ease here. Not isolation, just calmer, more peaceful vibes.
